ARCHITECTURE AND PERIOD FEATURES

From the moment you enter, the apartment reveals the elegant proportions typical of classic bourgeois residences, with generous volumes and high ceilings.

Herringbone parquet floors bring warmth and continuity throughout the interior. Several marble fireplaces structure the rooms and serve as striking decorative features. Tall windows enhance the sense of space and natural light, while some rooms display decorative ceiling mouldings. Certain windows also incorporate delicate stained-glass details, adding further character and charm.

The sitting room is particularly notable for its richly sculpted decorative fireplace, adorned with ceramic elements and figurative motifs evoking dragons and cherubs, a distinctive feature that gives the room a unique sense of character.

RECEPTION ROOMS

The apartment is organised around a generous central hallway that leads to the various reception rooms, creating a natural and elegant flow throughout the space.
