DESCRIPTION

Located a few kilometers from Chef-Boutonne, in a peaceful and very private setting, this charming stone house offers approximately 164 m² of living space with potential for further extension and is set on a 1,720 m² plot.

On the ground floor, the entrance opens onto beautiful original stone flagstones leading to a bright 31.43 m² living and dining room with wooden flooring, dual-aspect natural light, and a fireplace fitted with a wood-burning stove, creating a warm and welcoming atmosphere. The house also features a kitchen of approximately 10 m² and a spacious bedroom of 19.32 m² with an en-suite shower room equipped with a walk-in shower and WC. On the opposite side of the house there is an 18 m² office with large French doors opening onto the front of the property, an original bread oven, and a door providing direct access to the garden at the rear of the house.

Upstairs, a very large 45 m² bedroom with exposed beams, adding character and charm. A landing leads to a third bedroom of 18.48 m², a bathroom, and separate WC. Above the office there is also an attic that could be converted, offering additional development potential. The first floor could also benefit from an independent access via the office, making it particularly suitable for a guest suite, gîte, or independent living space.

The house is equipped with double-glazed windows and gas central heating, although the current drainage system (septic tank) is not compliant with regulations.
