NOTES

DESCRIPTION

Set in the countryside of the Gers, close to Eauze and in the heart of the Armagnac region, this substantial rural property combines an attractive traditional Gascon house with approximately 6 hectares of land and an unusually extensive collection of outbuildings.

Dating from the 1880s, the main house offers around 150 m² of existing ground-floor accommodation, together with approximately 100 m² of attic space.

The principal living room measures approximately 42 m² and runs through the house from south to north. There is also an equipped kitchenette with oven, extractor hood and hob.

There are four bedrooms measuring approximately 20 m², 12 m², 10 m² and 9 m². The largest bedroom retains a fireplace and exposed beams.

A shower room and WC complete the existing accommodation.

The house is currently undergoing internal renovation, giving a new owner the opportunity to complete and personalise the property.

FURTHER POTENTIAL:

Above the existing accommodation is approximately 100 m² of attic space with considerable potential for further development. One room has already been created with access to a balcony, and there are two existing windows.

The attic floor was insulated in 2021, with additional blown insulation above the eastern part of the house.

There is also potential to extend the main accommodation into the adjoining chai, subject to any necessary permissions.
